MONONGAHELA PEOPLE WROTH OVER HIGHWAY

Kick Because Commissioners Do Not Keep Road Repaired

WHAT THE "TIMES" SAYS
Was More or Less of "Gold Brick" in Construction--Officials Had Notice

Monongahela people are putting up a kick because the commissioners are not keeping the Dry Run road in repair. This is one of the roads built by the commissioners under the Flinn Road law, and was it is claimed, so poorly constructed that many people who took notice regarded the work in the nature of a "gold brick," and were surprised that the commissioners accepted it. Regarding this and the present condition of the road, the Monongahela Times says:

"The Washington county commissioners are now advertising for the re-surfacing of several of the recently constructed roads, among others being a road near McDonald, and another known as the Old Shaft road, near Washington.

"As this is evidently to be the policy of the commissioners with respect to repairs of improved roads, it would seem to be well for our own citizens, and particularly members of the automobile club, to insist on the Dry Run road being added to this list. It will be remembered that with the best intentions to please, the Dry Run road was regarded very much as a 'gold brick' by those who noticed the construction, and the quality of the stones used. Frequent complaints were made to the commissioners during its construction, and these county officials had ample notice that the county was not getting value received.

"It was a matter of surprise and regret that the road was accepted, and criticism of the commissioners' action in so doing was frequently heard and personally communicated. Now the road is practically worn out and, if not re-surfaced will not be better than a dirt road next winter.

"Instead of the dustless, mudless road fondly hoped for, easily four inches of top dressing have been worn off this summer and next winter will show up Mr. Howley's performance as a contractor, possibly to the satisfaction of our present commissioners, with whom he seems to be a favorite, but certainly not to the gratification of the public who use the road and pay the taxes."

The Dry Run road leading out of Monongahela was only completed a short time ago, either in the fall of 1909 or the spring of 1910, and it is stated that one end was practically worn out before the other end was completed.

Burglars Fire a Home.

Fire believed to have been started by burglars damaged the residence of Samuel Allinder at Washington Wednesday night and threatened other houses. Allinder works at night. His wife and two children were awakened to find their home filled with smoke. They fled.

Date Chosen For Picnic

Fifteen Sunday Schools Will Hold Outing at Eldora Park on August 3

At a meeting Wednesday evening between W. S. James and J. K. Brumbaugh representing a union of Sunday Schools and Roy Sharpnack, assistant manager of Eldora Park, August 3 was chosen as the date for the union picnic to be held this summer. Fifteen churches will join in holding the picnic comprising the Charleroi district, of the Washington County Sunday School association. Plans for the affair will be gotten under way at once.

SCHOOL WORK IS DELAYED

May be First of Year Before Structure is Completed

NORTH CHARLEROI WORK

With the excavating practically finished, the work of laying the foundation of the new North Charleroi school will begin this week. Owing to the presence of a thick bed of limestone the work of excavating has taken several weeks, it having been started about the first of May. To get the limestone rock removed took considerable dynamiting. This part of the work was started about the first of June and has been continued ever since.

By the difficult excavating a big delay in finishing the school will be the result. When the contract was awarded it was specified that the building was to be completed October 1. Now it will take probably until the first of the year before the new building will be ready for occupancy. William Taggart and Company of Fayette City is the contractor and he will push with all diligence the work on the building.

In the meantime it will be necessary for the school board to rent rooms in town somewhere in which they can hold school until the new building is ready. This will occasion considerable inconvenience. It is necessary for a school district to have seven months school a term, otherwise they lose their appropriation. The school board will endeavor to live up to the law in every respect.

Morganza Managers Elect.

The board of managers of the Western Pennsylvania Reform School at Morganza reorganized Monday night as follows: President, A. J. Pentecost of Pittsburgh; vice president John F. Budke of Canonsburg; secretary and treasurer, Charles W. Houston, Pittsburgh; solicitor, John S. Robb, Jr., Carnegie. President Pentecost has been a member of the board for nearly 20 years. He succeeds Major A. G. Bapper.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE WHEN VESTA STARTS

River Coal Shipments Getting Better Now That Shutdown Extending Some Weeks Has Been Terminated

STEAMER H. A. LAUGHLIN TO BE PUT INTO USE

With the resumption of the Vesta was put in use Wednesday. With the mines after a few weeks shut down at California, there has been some improvement in the river coal trade. At present Jones and Laughlin, the owners of the Vesta mine, have three boats running, and the H. A. Laughlin, disabled some time ago at Allenport, will be put into use this week.

All the Vesta shipments are to the Jones and Laughlin mills. The Steamers B. F. Jones and Titan have been operating since the mine re-opened at California and the Steamer Vesta

GRADUATES FROM WEST POINT HERE TO EXAMINE LOCK

Lieuts. Strong and Fowler Inspect Practical Workings at Lock No. 4

COL. ROBERTS A VISITOR

After having spent considerable time in Panama and other places studying government work, two West Point graduates were brought to Lock No. 4 Wednesday by Col. T. P. Roberts assistant engineer on the Monongahela river to study the practical workings of the lock. They spent a number of hours in and about the lock, being shown about by Col. Roberts and his brother, R. A. Roberts, who is a government employee at Lock No. 4 lock. The West Pointers were Lieutenants F. S. Strong and R. F. Fowler, both graduates with the class of 1910.

It is the custom of the government to send out each year some of the graduates from West Point who have been most proficient in their studies to study lock and dam work, expecting them some time to succeed the present and older men in the various official positions. On a number of occasions West Point men have been brought to the lock here to examine it.

Both Lieut. Strong and Lieut. Fowler stood at the head of the class when they graduated. In fact Lieut. Strong secured first honors. Both men recently returned from Panama where they have been for some months studying the work there.

AUTOMOBILE MUCH DAMAGED WHEN IT SKIDS INTO TREE

Skidding on the wet street while running from Spencer's automobile garage toward the Hotel Wellington where the owner awaited the car, the big automobile of J. E. Rylands, proprietor of the Wellington, was somewhat damaged yesterday. Charles Devlin was driving the car, and was on his way to the hotel when the heavy rain overtook him. There were no chains on the wheels and the machine skidded forcibly into a tree between Second and Third streets on McKean avenue. Two wheels were torn off and the car otherwise damaged. Devlin was the only one in the machine at the time and was able to escape being thrown out by holding to the steering wheel. The automobile was taken back to the garage to be repaired.

Rev. G. G. Kerr, of Canonsburg visited friends in Charleroi Wednesday night. He leaves with his son Gibson Friday for Canada, where he will spend a part of his summer vacation. From Canada he will go to Winona Lake.

ELKS PLAN TO ESTABLISH NEW NATIONAL HOME

Per Capita Tax of 50 Cents to be Levied On Each Member of Order

SITE AT BEDFORD CITY

Terminating the closest campaign in the history of the order, the Grand Lodge of Elks in session at Atlantic City this week elected John Patrick Sullivan of New Orleans Grand Exalted Ruler, but the remarkable race made by Charles Rasbury of Dallas, Texas, for the office made the result long in doubt. Sullivan received 814 of the 1,602 votes cast; Rasbury 549 and Arthur Moreland of New York, editor of the Elks' Antler, polled 233.

Other officers elected include: Grand Esteemed Leading Knight, L. M. Level of Florida; Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight, Frank B. Kingsley of Kansas; Grand Secretary, Fred C. Robinson of Dubuque; Grand Treasurer, Edmond Leach of New York; Grand Tiler, P. B. Shields of West Virginia, and Grand Inner Guard, L. P. Leveroni.

A per capita tax of 50 cents will be levied on every member of the Order of Elks to raise the $250,000 needed for the new national Elks' Home at Bedford City, Va., according to action taken by the Grand Lodge.

CHURCH LEAGUE SQUABBLE ENDS IN POLICE COURT

John Walsh, second baseman for the St. Anthony team of the Church league at Monongahela who was arrested Tuesday evening in connection with the fight at the ball grounds was discharged at the hearing before J. C. Isler.

A warrant had been issued for Tom Hillman, the instigator of the trouble and he was also given a hearing. Hillman was given his choice between a fine of $10 and costs or 30 days to jail. He paid the fine and costs and was released.

REV. C. E. FRONTZ RETURNS FROM TRIP TO WESTERN STATES

The officers installed were as follows: Chancellor commander, Ralph Grimes; vice chancellor, Robert Murray; prelate, David F. Worthington; master warden, James E. Holzshu; keeper of record and seal and master of finance, John A. Holzshu; master at arms, C. R. Welsh; outer guard, Felix Lambremont.

LEAPS FROM HIGH BRIDGE

Well Known Washington Man Commits Self Destruction

SUPPOSED TO BE INSANE

Believed to have been mentally unbalanced by grief over the death of his wife and four children, Brit Hart 63 years old, a wealthy retired business man of Washington ended his life Wednesday afternoon by jumping into a tank of water in East Maiden street, opposite his residence.

Richard King, a stoker at the power plant of the company, saw the man climbing a ladder to the top of the tank, which is nine feet high, and calling to a pedestrian, followed. Before he reached the tank Hart leaped in and the efforts of King and the other man to rescue him were futile, Hart sinking almost immediately. The body was recovered 10 minutes later.

Hart was born in West Bethlehem township, Washington county. He was a son of John Gibson Hart, former associate judge of Washington county. For years Hart operated grain elevators and was a large real estate holder. In 1884 he was elected to the State Legislature.

Numerous Features Attract Large Crowd to Eldora

BABY CONTEST INTERESTS

Prizes Are Awarded--Athletic Events Decided--Jimmy Valentine Captured

With features in the nature of a baby popularity contest, a hunt for Jimmy Valentine and a number of athletic events, a most successful outing and picnic was held by the congregation of St. Jerome's Catholic church, at Eldora Park Wednesday. There was a good crowd on the grounds and the only marring feature was the rain of the afternoon which dampened the grounds. However, it did not dampen the ardor of those present in having a good time.

Probably one of the most interesting affairs of the entire day was the baby popularity contest. This was conducted by Connelius Buchanan. Numerous votes were cast and each of the eight little tots had plenty of favorites. Three special prizes were given, the first one to the baby of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lee, of North Charleroi. The second special prize was given to the infant of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Claybaugh and the third to the child of Mr. and Mrs. William Urban. Prizes were awarded each of the babies entered.

The judges were M. T. Crowley and George Pepperney.

There were a number of athletic events, including boys' races, men's races, a fat man's race, and girls' races. Paul Nutt of Charleroi won two prizes for young men's races, in the 100 and 150 yard dashes. John Henrion won a prize in the men's race.

During the evening there was an eager search for Jimmy Valentine, and James Dwyer of Charleroi won the prize of $25 for capturing him. Elmer Kiefer personified the wonderful Jimmy, and successfully eluded his anxious pursuers for considerable time.

Supper was served on the grounds and a number went to the park for that feature only. Tickets had been sold in advance and a snug sum was realized. The park amusements were in great demand during the entire day, each child holding a certain number of free tickets donated by the park management. Special cars were provided for the Sunday School children both going to and from the park.

Will Hold Dance.

Prof. Oatman has issued invitations for a Japanese dance to be held at Eldora Park on Tuesday night, July 18. As special feature there will be three moonlight dances and three shadow dances.

LIFE IN THE OPEN.

Notwithstanding the strenuous efforts on the part of National and State boards of health to restrict and eliminate the ravages of the Great White Plague the dread disease still carries off victims by the thousands. One has only to keep tab on the deaths chronicled in the local and nearby newspapers to be convinced that the victims of tuberculosis are still too numerous in our own community to make health conditions safe in the midst of such a deadly infectious disease.

It is now demonstrated that pure air and life in the open is about the only preventive of this dread disease. Persons who are pre-disposed or threatened, or even in the incipient stages are made to live and sleep in the open air as the only means of effecting a cure. The difficulties encountered and in carrying out this treatment is evidence that more and ample means should be provided for the people of the State to avail themselves of the advantages of life in the open.

One of the suggestions that seems to meet with considerable favor is for the State to acquire still more forest reserves and throw them open for camping parties during the summer or even winter season. By providing warden's campers could be afforded police protection, as well as controlled and regulated in their use of the forest privileges. A housed-in family could camp as cheaply on a State forest reserve as to live at home and the benefits of a summer spent in the open would be inestimable. This is a State issue which should come up for consideration, and the health boards of the State will do well to promote it at every possible opportunity.

ROWDY BASEBALL.

The umpire baiting and spirit of hoodlumism that seems to prevail in baseball circles this year is not except in Charleroi, and in some of the Church League games some disgraceful conduct has been manifested on the part of the spectators over decisions of the umpire. Jeers, catcalls, opprobrious epithets and insulting remarks have been showered upon the umpire who was luckless enough to make a decision that did not happen to please the crowd. This is not only a serious reflection upon the true sportsmanship of Charleroi audiences but it is also a sad commentary on the spirit of Christian brotherhood for which the league was founded to encourage and promote.

Umpires are like all other mortals, liable to make mistakes, but the chances are that nine times out of ten the umpire is right and the spectators wrong who roast the luckless officials for a decision that is displeasing. The Church League umpires in particular have nothing to gain by being unfair, and they only undertake the thankless task in order that others may enjoy the sport. For spectators to deliberately insult a reputable fellow citizen by yelling "Rotter!" "Robber!" and hooting at him because he judges a play as he sees it is not only unjust and ungenerous, but is most ungentlemanly, to say the least.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Some alleged musical comedies are so rotten that they are actually humorous.

If there isn't at least one coal deal closed a week in Greene county it feels rather lonesome.

That bad town of Erie which took considerable pride in its wickedness, is beginning to spruce up a bit and goes to church on Sundays; also to Sunday, when he was preaching there.

Some theatres have got to giving fans to women visitors. To insure popularity they might try serving ice cream.

To tell some men they have more money than they ever had is not giving them any compliments worth while.

Ball players can give more expert interviews than half the politicians.

Lots of stuff goes into the waste paper basket of newspaper offices that has been sent by persons seeking free advertising. And then people say newspaper men have nothing to do.

The Washington Post declares that its idea of waste of time is the shipment of a consignment of safety razors to Haiti.

However with Mr. Weymann, Glenn Curtis and others looking after America's interests it appears that we can still be on the map as aviators.

An optimist is a man who usually gets taken in by everybody and has fun out of it. A pessimist is a man who occasionally gets taken in, and grows for months afterwards about it.

Although they decided out in Omaha that a horse is preferable to an automobile, people are not noticed trading off autos very rapidly.

Along with the safe and sane method of celebrating the Fourth would it not be wise to make a move for safe and sane millinery?

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Some of the persiflage which baseball players band to one another is most amusing," said Umpire I. T. Daniel in the Church League. "In the game Tuesday night between the Lutherans and Baptists Coach Joe Mason kept up a line of talk to his players that was most amusing. For instance, Wertz made a two base hit, but got nipped trying to stretch it into a three-bagger.

"Make a hit, but don't think it's a home run every time you connect with the ball," said Joe, the next time Wertz came to bat.

"Later, when Joe's brother Charlie made a long high fly to center which was gobbled by the fielder, Joe growled out:

"What are you trying to do—put the shot?"

"He keeps his players jollied, however, and they all obey orders and are putting up the kind of ball that really places the team in the semi-professional class."

On the street car the other day in the suburbs of Pittsburgh a couple of young men were engaged in an animated conversation concerning an European trip of one of them. The returned tourist, who was a big husky young fellow, had evidently been sent abroad by some big industrial plant to look over similar concerns in Europe. A bit of his conversation on a side issue proved quite entertaining.

"When I started for New York," said the tourist "I bought a nice new suit case at Boggs & Buhl's—paid fourteen bucks for it. That was all the baggage I took, and I hooked on it one of those leather tags with a space for a printed card with my name and address, so that I could keep tab on it. We landed at Antwerp, and some guy at the hotel didn't do a thing but paste a big red label on my nice new suit case. That made me sore, and I put up a holler when and there.

"Look here," I says to the guy, 'if you want advertising space on that suit case it'll cost you money. You get a wet rag or a sponge and rub that label off P. D. Q. You don't use my baggage for a billboard.'

"From that time on I had a fight at every place I stopped to keep the guys from pasting advertising stuff on my suit case. Some of 'em I had to threaten to crack their beans to keep them from putting on the decorations, but you bet I kept 'em off. The most of the fellows I met on the route seemed tickled to death to have their grips decorated with advertising stuff but not me. I bought that 'benny' to use after I got home, and I didn't propose to have it look like an old stamp album."

Tricking the Bobby.

A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a ham. Having paid for his purchase, he requested that it should be hung outside the shop door, saying that he would call back for it. The customer then paced up and down outside the shop till a policeman came in sight, and just as the man in blue caught his eye he grabbed the ham and bolted. The constable, however, soon colared the thief, as he thought, and hauled him back to the shop. Having explained the nature of the alleged crime to the shop assistant, he asked the latter to charge the offender. "But," said the assistant as he realized the joke, "it's his own ham. He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose."—London Answers.

Weatherwise Birds and Fish.

The seagull makes a splendid living barometer. If a covey of seagulls fly seaward early in the morning sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no haze hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable. Of all weatherwise fish the dolphin is the most remarkable. During a fierce gale or a storm at sea the mariner knows that the end of it is near if he can see a dolphin or a number of that fish sporting on the high sea waves.

First Flying Ambulances.

A valued servant and friend of the great Napoleon, Dominique Larrey, first established that system of "flying ambulances," which carried the wounded to the rear almost as soon as disabled. The staff numbered about 340 men with four heavy and twelve light two and four wheeled ambulances to each division. Napoleon reviewed this arm of the service with the greatest interest and once exclaimed to Larrey: "Your work is one of the most important conceptions of our age. It will suffice for your reputation." For the Egyptian campaign Larrey secured the services of 800 qualified surgeons in addition to the regular force. At Alexandria General Figuiere was severely wounded, and on his recovery wished to present Napoleon with a splendid Damascus saber. "Yes," said the emperor, "I accept in order to give the surgeon in chief, by whose exertions your life has been spared." This saber, engraved with the words "Aboukir" and "Larrey," was taken from the great surgeon by the Prussians at Waterloo.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

The Horrors of Thirst.

In the oasis of Mogara, says L. Dow Corington in the Wide World Magazine, we had a first experience of the desert traveler's great enemy—thirst. We were seated in front of a Bedouin chief's tent, our two baby camels enjoying their first drink of water since they had left Cairo, when, from across a sand dune, a Bedouin came staggering and tottering toward us. His eyes were bloodshot, his lips twice their natural size, while his tongue, blue and dry, hung out of his mouth. Evidently he had lost himself, had wandered around for days in search of water and had stumbled upon the oasis in the very nick of time. To allow him to drink would have been his death. In spite of his frantic struggles, he was held by four men, while a fifth allowed a few drops of water to trickle down his throat. It was as though he were a redhot boiler which would have to be allowed to cool off before being filled if an accident was to be avoided.

Objected to Publicity.

Old Brother Brown had been approached several times by the colored deacons of his church and asked to pay his church dues. He had promised to "pay up" just as soon as he sold a calf which he owned. Several months later he sold the calf. The next Sunday morning at service the congregation sang the old familiar hymn:

The half has never been told
Of life so full and free.

Brother Brown, somewhat deaf and conscious of his failure to pay his dues, understood the words to be:

The calf has never been sold.

But when it's sold he'll pay.

When the hymn was finished the old colored man, very indignant, arose and said:

"Bredren and sistahs, I has sold dat calf and heh's yo' ten dollahs! But I didn't ca' about de whole chu'ch singin' about it."—National Monthly.

A Costly Tuft of Feathers.

On the apex of the crown worn by the Prince of Wales on special occasions is a curious feather, or, rather, tuft of feathers, the top of which is adorned with a gold thread. The value of this feather is estimated at $50,000, and it has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in human possession. Twenty years passed after the first hunter set out to procure the feather before it was attained, and during that period more than a dozen hunters had lost their lives in the quest. The costly tuft is of periwinkle feathers, and the extraordinary danger incurred in procuring it was due to the fact that the periwinkle, for some unknown reason, is to be found only in dense jungles in which tigers make their lair.—Chicago Tribune.

Turning the Turtle.

Turtle hunting is not without excitement. The method of capture consists of the simple act of turning the turtle on its back. Once in this position it is quite helpless. Its only defense is to cover its cap with sand thrown up by the powerful front legs or flippers. These are brought into action in an instant, and woe betide the captor who has his eyes and mouth open at the moment, for the sand is hurled with great force. When turned over the captive is dragged up the beach to above high water mark, and this is no easy task, for it weighs about four hundredweight.

Premeditated.

"And why do you claim that it was with malice aforethought that the automobile defendant ran down the complainant?"

"On the morning it happened, your honor, I heard him say that he was going to take out his new auto and see if he could not run across a few people he knew."—Houston Post.

A Giddy Girl.

"Is your daughter of a practical turn of mind?"

"No; she is very frivolous. Wants to take cooking lessons instead of perfecting her game of bridge."—Exchange.

His Honest Face.

"Anyway, he has an honest face." "Honest? You surprise me." "Yes; it's the only honest thing about him. It shows how dishonest he really is."—Life.

Not Misplaced.

Backer—You got trimmed bad. I thought you said you were confident of the result. Puglist—I was. I knew I'd get licked.—Puck.

MAN AND THE WORLD.

A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.

How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population at 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shell of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

The Archbishop's Shirts.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, Mgr de Saunay, was remarkable for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monsignore," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work." "What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff. Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here; this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumference of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

Old Cures.

The antiquary took down a little gray book. "Here is a 'family doctor,'" he said, "that was published as far back as 1561. Talk about your quaint prescriptions!" The first prescription, a truly quaint one, ran: "A man be greved with the falling-sicknesses, let him take a be-wolve harte and make it to powder and use it; but if it be a woman, let her take a she-wolves harte." A 1561 jaundice cure was: "Take earthwormes and cut them small, and braye them with a little wyne so that ye may swallow it, drinke the same fasting." For tooth ache: "Seeth as many little frogges sitting upon trees as thou canst get, in water; take the fat flowyng from them, and when nede is, anoynt the teeth therewith."

EVERYONE NEEDS IT

W. F. Hennings is Having a Wonderful Sale of Thompson's Barosma, the Mighty Kidney and Liver Specific.

And no wonder, when he offers to refund your money if it doesn't cure any disease of the kidneys, liver or bladder, backache, sideache, nervousness or any weakness of the kidneys. But Thompson's Barosma has made so many almost miraculous cures that W. F. Hennings' is pretty certain not to have any returns.

Here are a few instances. Frank L. Sturges, Sturtevant, Crawford county, Pa., was cured of Bright's disease six years ago and only took six bottles. He has had no bad symptoms since.

"I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Barosma. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 36 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."—M. S. Langworthy, Tryonville, Pa.

After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use crutches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hope had left him, and he had no faith in any remedy took six bottles of Thompson's Barosma, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely true, and the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer in the face of such facts? How can they suffer when W. F. Hennings' guarantees to refund the money if a cure is not effected? Thompson's Barosma, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

The Bear He Missed.
Telling in his book of some hunting experiences near the north pole, Captain Sverdrup wrote: "Walrus and seals were harpooned and shot and also the large arctic hare, which seems to have contracted the peculiar habit of frequently running long distances on its hind legs. Hunting was not always easy, the atmosphere playing strange tricks with the eyesight, as witness the following account of the stalking of a bear: 'With the utmost caution, with his gun ready and his eye fixed inexorably on the bear, Sergei advanced to the spot. Meanwhile the bear sat wagging his head, but keeping a good lookout. It appeared, for when Sergei had come some twenty steps nearer it rose and flew away. It flew as well as any bird, which, after all, was not remarkable, for it was a glaucous gull.'"

A Fatal Omission.
"I can't for the life of me make out what my wife is driving at in this letter?"

"Of course you can't, old chap. Don't you see that she forgot to add the postscript?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

FRIED POTATOES.

Sold on the Streets From Pushcarts in Parts of France.

The street vending of pommes frites, or French fried potatoes, is peculiar to the northern part of France. Pommes frites take the place of peanuts and popcorn and are sold in much the same fashion. Not only is this trade carried on in some instances as a regularly established business, but workmen wishing to increase their earnings come out on the streets in the evening and sell these fried potatoes from pushcarts. Their profits often exceed their day's wages.

The pushcarts are of the ordinary type, but covered. A coke brazier is inserted through the flooring, over which is placed the large iron caldron holding the fat obtained from beef suet. Raw potatoes, after being pared, are pressed through a special cutting machine, coming out in long, narrow, four sided pieces. These are immediately put into the boiling fat and in several minutes are thoroughly cooked. They are then salted and sold in small paper cornucopias holding 1 or 2 cents' worth.

Pommes frites have the advantage that they supply a satisfying and nutritive meal for a few cents. This is especially appreciated by the mill employees during the noon hour, as they are thus enabled to have something hot with their otherwise cold lunches. Rather than go to the trouble of preparing the dish, to say nothing of filling the house with the odor of boiling fat, many families prefer to purchase the freshly cooked tubers from the nearest vendor. These fried potatoes are not sold merely at meatlines, but during the day and are eaten like popcorn.—Consular Reports.

BULL ANTS OF AFRICA.

Elephants, Lions and Even Man Himself Flee From Them in Terror.

In the vast equatorial forests of Africa the most dreaded of animals is the great bull ant. Unlike other ants, it carries nothing away; everything is eaten on the spot. Every kind of beast and reptile—elephants, lions, gorillas, snakes and man himself—flies before this terrible insect.

These ants march through the forests in a long thin column, two inches wide and miles in length. If they come to an open space where there are no trees to shelter them from the sun they burrow underground and form tunnels, through which they march on. It often takes as long as twelve hours for one of these armies to pass.

Any creature overtaken is at once attacked with irresistible fury and instantly devoured. The strongest and the weakest, the most fierce and the most timid of creatures are alike their prey.

Natives overtaken by them seek refuge in the nearest river or pond. Yet even when the ants themselves are drowned their strong plucers refuse to relax their hold upon any flesh they may have attached themselves to, and though their bodies are torn forcibly away, their heads remain.

Certain barbarous tribes, when a man is condemned for witchcraft, fasten him to a tree and leave him to the ants. When they have passed a skeleton alone is left to tell the tale.—Pearson's.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out, in the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied it down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

A Financier.
Maud—Isnt the man you are engaged to a speculator?
Clara—No, indeed! He's a financier.
"How do you know?"
"He didn't buy the engagement ring until after I had accepted him."—Exchange.

A Testimony, etc.
When the French artist Benjamin Constant was traveling in Morocco he was invited by the sultan to present himself at court at Fez. The painter's first thought was in regard to his costume. "Court" in Europe was one thing; in Morocco it was likely to prove something different. There was nothing to do, however, but to wear his ordinary evening clothes. He was ignorant of the fact that the Moors look upon black garments as very vulgar, and it was only after his arrival that he learned his mistake. The courtiers smiled openly; worst of all, they sneered. The painter was a man of hasty temper, and suddenly, nettled by their insolence, he closed his opera hat and sprang it open in the faces of the jeering crowd. They scattered, yelling with surprise and fear. The sultan heard the noise and demanded the cause. After he had seen and examined the wonderful hat he gave this oracular opinion:

"If I had lived a hundred years in your country and adopted all your other customs I could never have brought myself to set on my head so hideous a contrivance as that!"

Painfully Explicit.
The proprietor of a certain hotel in Europe has posted up the following warning to his clients:

"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want not to say anything, they must order the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager, they will be charged for the least things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."

After this explicit information there surely could be no excuse for misunderstanding.—Boston Globe.

Surprising the Bullock.
In times of crisis and worry a kind word has been known to have surprisingly good results. The unexpectedness of such a word is perhaps the secret of its force. A late book, "On the Wool Track," backs the moral with an anecdote.

A team was working on the Broken Hill road, and a bullock—the Beelzebub of the team—had gone obstinate, and the coach was passing. The whip was swinging, and some apt remarks were just forming on the back of the teamster's tongue when he caught sight of a clerical hat on the front seat and just in time thought better of it. He coughed politely.

"Ahem—Strawberry," he said, "proceed!"

To his obvious astonishment Strawberry proceeded.

The Indian's Vision.
More or less wonderful accounts have from time to time been given of the powers of vision possessed by savage races. During a British anthropological expedition to the Torres strait the visual faculty of the natives was carefully tested, and from these tests the conclusion was reached that the excellence of vision shown by the savages has a psychological origin—that is to say, it arises from knowing what to look for. When the civilized man acquires familiarity with the environment he can see as far as they can. Thus the power of an Indian to tell the sex of a deer at such a distance that distinguishing features like antlers were invisible was found to rest upon his knowledge of the peculiar gait of the male deer.—Scientific American.

Wondrous Tact.
As an example of graciousness and tact Matthew White tells in Muesey's Magazine of a London clergyman who was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players, the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even today to wear their hair long?"

Bottles and Rags.
"Bottles and rags, bottles and rags!" called out a rag and bone man as he piled his calling.
"Why do you always put these words together?" asked a passerby.
"Because, madam," replied the man, "courteously touching his hat, 'wherever you find bottles you find rags!'"—London Family Herald.

A Shellfish Thought.
"Funny, isn't it?"
"That what?"
"That when a fellow's affairs have reached the blue point he never declares that the world is his oyster?"—Judge.

The Ruthless Razor.
Lady Customer (in furniture shop)—What has become of those lovely sideboards you had when I was last here?
Salesman (smirking)—I shaved 'em off, madam.

Sympathy.
Cora—Have you seen my new photographs, dear? Every one says they look exactly like me.
Dora—What a shame! Can't you get another sitting?

Chiefly the mold of a man's fortune is in his own hands.—Bacon.

QUAINT MARRIAGE NOTICE.

William Cullen Bryant Broke the News Gently to His Mother.

The following letter from William Cullen Bryant to his mother, quoted by Professor Chubb in "Stories of Authors," indicates that the author of "Thanatopsis" could enjoy his little joke on occasion:

"Dear Mother—I hasten to send you the melancholy intelligence of what has lately happened to me. Early on the evening of the eleventh day of the present month I was at a neighboring house in this village. Several people of both sexes were assembled in one of the apartments, and three or four others, with myself, were in another. At last came in a little elderly gentleman, pale, thin, with a solemn countenance, pleuritic voice, hooked nose and hollow eyes. It was not long before we were summoned to attend in the apartment where he and the rest of the company were gathered. We went in and took our seats. The little elderly gentleman with the hook nose prayed, and we all stood up. When he had finished most of us sat down. The gentleman with the hooked nose then muttered certain cabalistic expressions, which I was too much frightened to remember, but I recollect that at the conclusion I was given to understand that I was married to a young lady of the name of Frances Fairchild, whom I perceived standing by my side and whom I hope in the course of a few months to have the pleasure of introducing to you as your daughter-in-law, which is a matter of some interest to the poor girl, who has neither father nor mother in the world."

SHIELDED THE LADY.

A Tactful Head Waiter Balked an Offensive Hotel Guest.

To illustrate an incident that occurred in a hotel uptown the other night, where, if you are not known, you have to produce some sort of patent of absolute respectability, construct a rectangle, lettering the imaginary diagonal corners A, B, C and D. A represents a solitary male person dining. B represents a comely person of the opposite sex seated at another table with a party. C represents a head waiter and D a group of the unemployed waiters. Let the line AB represent an admiring look that travels continuously. BA represents a look of annoyance. CA and CB are comprehending glances directed by the head waiter.

The point C moves toward D, making a triangle. After a whispered direction a figure which may be termed O, because it represents a particularly round waiter, moves from the point D until it reaches a point on the line AB C moves back to position.

A finds that his eye stops at O, which he cannot see through, and calls O to take an order. Thereupon C motions toward D, when another waiter, traveling on the line DA, effects a junction with A and goes off at a tangent. A cranes his neck, stretching to one side or the other, but it cannot get past O. The result is that A finally sees what is up, finishes his coffee in sheepish disgust and leaves the room.—New York Sun.

Astrology With Risks.
Formerly they had rough and ready modes of testing claims to supernatural powers.

"Dost thou know where thou wilt pass Christmas?" asked Henry VII. of an astrologer. He could not tell.

Whereupon the king's grace, which did love a merry jest, made answer, "I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou wilt spend Christmas in prison."

John Galeazzo, duke of Milan, is said to have made even merrier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early.

"And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the prophet.

"My lord, my star promises me a long life."

"Never trust to your star, man; you are to be banged today," and the duke took care that his own prediction should be fulfilled.

Killing One Fly.
Every fly begins as an egg deposited in some kind of organic filth. It hatches into a tiny maggot within a few hours, begins to feed and grow, completes its growth and comes out as a perfect fly in possibly ten days. It then requires at least fourteen days to mature its first batch of eggs, and it may live to mature and deposit at least six layings, of from 120 to 150 eggs each. This means that in killing one fly we may be preventing the hatching of nearly a thousand others.—Youth's Companion.

Two Kinds of Curiosity.
Philanthropic Visitor (to jailbird)—My friend, may I ask what it was that brought you here? Jailbird—The very same thing that brought you here—the desire to poke my nose into other people's business, only I used generally to go in by way of the basement window.—Exchange.

Mean.
Miss Mugley—I always try to retire before midnight. I don't like to miss my beauty sleep. Miss Pepprey—You really should try harder. You certainly don't get enough of it.

Two Sides.
Willis—Why don't you go to church?
Gillis—Too far. Why don't you go?
Willis—We live next door to one, and I hate to get all dressed up just to go that little way.—Puck.

By the work one knows the workmen.—La Fontaine.

A Healthful Old Age for Women

The turn of life is the most critical period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very distressing symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, extreme nervousness and despondency are symptoms of this condition.

Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

If this period is safely passed through the prospect will be good for a long period of sound health and comparative immunity from disease.

Here is Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon at this period:

Alton Station, Ky.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from female troubles in consequence of my age, and thought I could not live. I wrote you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I thank you so much for the good it has done me."—Mrs. Emma Bailey, R. R. No. 1, Alton Station, Ky.

Kewaskum, Wis.—"Your medicine was a blessing to me in my sickness at Change of Life. I cannot describe what I suffered for five long years from headache, backache, dizziness, no sleep, palpitation of heart and irregularities which are common at that period and sometimes continue for weeks at a time.

"I have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am 54 years old and can do all my work."—Mrs. Carl Dahlke, Kewaskum, Wis.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

CHURCH LEAGUE CONTAINS MANY STAR PLAYERS

Two All-Star Teams Picked Which Would Make Minor Leaguers Hustle

There has been some talk of a picked team from the Church league playing picked teams from Church league teams of other towns. Following are given two teams either of which could put up a winning contest against many minor league teams:

Guder	catcher	Fleming
McIlvaine	pitcher	Miller
C. Mason	first base	Wilson
Butz	second base	Cratty
Urban	third base	Newton
Kuhn	short stop	Stech
J. Mason	left field	E. Miller
Van Carson	middle field	Sharkey
Mathers	right field	Wertz

With those lineups there are players left who would fit in probably as good, making the selection of an All-Star team an extremely difficult job. For instance there are H. Mason, Lindsay, Jenkins, Bert Mitchell, Speedy McKean, Bege, Protin, Motts,

Vernon, Johnson and Nutt who are putting up mighty good ball. For pitchers there is a variety, nearly every club having their full share. For instance there are Bragg, Briggs, Kiefer, Fontanesi, Donahue, Beno, Buchanan, Pollock, Bege and Osborne who can ornament the slab properly.

BASEBALL BINGLES

The Lutherans played errorless ball Tuesday night. That's the kind that wins the glad rag.

It's the Methodists and First Presbyterians tonight. Batteries are unannounced as yet but a good warm battle is promised.

It is probable that the deal between the Episcopalians and Catholics in which the former gets Righter and St. Jerome's club gets Quinto, will go through. There was a hitch in proceedings.

Brownsville wants to have a game between picked teams of that town and Charleroi.

Stech the Lutherans shortstop, is probably leading the league shortstops at all points now. He is smashing the ball regularly.

Johnson, the Electric light man, is one who is truly, sincerely and respectfully playing the game to get what fun there is out of it. Haywood is considerably missed on the Baptist team.

Billy Kuhn plays for a double play every chance and if the fellows handling the ball after him are as quick as he, such a play is usually registered.

The Lutherans have three of their hardest games to play this far. Next week they meet the Catholics, the following week the Episcopalians and then the First Presbyterians.

Providing all postponed games are played off before hand the Baptists and the Catholics will finish the league season with their game on Friday, August 4. This will complete the 56 games.

BIG LEAGUE NOTES

Jesse Tannehill, "Doc" Newton and Bill Bailey former American League stars are twirling in the Southern league this season.

Bob Coulson continued his awful slaughter of the ball at Brooklyn Wednesday. He got two hits.

Catcher George Gibson said some unprintable things to Umpire Frary at New York when that majestic adjudicator refused to call Devore out at home plate. Gibby claimed he had him by several feet.

Bobby Byrne kicked himself out of the game at Brooklyn Wednesday and Bill McKechnie went on that bag.

Bert Humphries is waiting his turn to work for Cincinnati.

Pat Flaherty former pitcher for Pittsburgh is playing the field for Boston regular and tapping the ball to good use.

Brownie Gessler with the Washington Americans is hitting hard.

Tyrus Cobb, Esq., Detroit's premier batter is trying to pull away records for a high batting average, but to beat "Tip" O'Neil's average of .495, made while with St. Louis in 1887, or Hugh Duffy's percentage of .438, with Philadelphia in 1894, he will have to go some.

Greenland's Exclusiveness.

Greenland, with its icy mountains, is very exclusive, and so far from inviting visitors, it even makes it inconvenient for tourists to land on the little bit of occasionally green land that surrounds its great heart of perpetual ice. Permission must be had from Denmark. Denmark is, indeed, very careful and conservative in the management of Greenland affairs. The trade there is monopolized by the state, and only government vessels are welcomed to Greenland waters. This is to protect Greenlanders from unscrupulous merchants. The state also fixes both the price they shall pay for food and the price they shall sell at.

Saves Time For His Wife.

They were discussing their husbands, neither of whom was distinguished for his domesticity. "My husband amuses me," said the hostess, "by the excuses he has for being detained downtown on evenings. Sometimes I can almost hear his brain working out an excuse as he tiptoes up the stairs."

"My husband," said the caller, "is different. He is a very systematic man, you know, and some time ago he wrote out a list of various excuses and numbered them. Now, when he comes in he just calls up the stairs, 'No. 1' or 'No. 20,' or whatever the number may be."—Judge.

Von Weber's Last Portrait.
A strange memorial of a famous man was among the possessions of George Augustus Sala. He tells of it in "My Life and Adventures."

My mother prior to her widowhood had known Von Weber during his visit to London in 1820. He was a frequent visitor to our house in New street, and I have a water color drawing of the illustrious German composer in a gray dressing gown sitting in a large pink and white striped covered fauteuil, his head sunk on his breast and looking desperately ill. Beneath is the inscription, "Alas, poor Karl Maria! The great musician died, indeed, in London of consumption on the 6th of June in the year named."

Some Handicaps.

"Sir, I wish to marry your daughter," faltered the young man.

"You do, eh?" exclaimed the fond parent. "Well, I have been rather expecting this, and to be thoroughly orthodox, I shall put a few questions to you. Do you drink?"

"No, sir. I abhor liquor."

"You do, eh? Smoke?"

"I never use tobacco in any form."

"Well, I didn't suppose you ate it. Do you frequent the race tracks?"

"I never saw a horse race in my life, sir."

"Um-m-m! Play cards for money?"

"Emphatically no, sir."

"Well, young man, I must say you are heavily handicapped. My daughter is a thorough society girl, and I can't for the life of me see what she is going to do with you. However, it's her funeral, and if she wants to undertake the job—why, God bless you both!"—Washington Post.

IMPALED BY AN ARROW.

Pinned Through the Neck to a Tree. Yet He Survived.

It was in the summer of 1839 that George Wainwright and Ben Spencer, each in charge of a train of freight wagons, were headed for the Missouri river to bring supplies back to Colorado points. The Indians were very troublesome in those days, and these two outfits always camped together for protection. One night they had arranged the camp, with the wagons forming a circle, and everybody but the guards was to be inside. Wainwright preferred to sleep in a clump of cottonwoods about a quarter of a mile off, and there he fixed himself with his negro servant as a bodyguard. Neither the camp nor Wainwright was disturbed during the night, but early the next morning while Wainwright was sitting on the ground with his back to a tree drinking his tin of coffee an arrow from an unseen foe entered his neck at the right of the jugular vein and was driven with such force as to impale the victim to the tree. The negro, believing his master was killed, ran to Spencer's camp and gave the alarm.

Spencer and some of his men rushed over to Wainwright. Instead of being dead Wainwright was not even seriously injured. Spencer cut the arrow off close to the point of entrance and then gently drew Wainwright's head forward until he was released. The victim suffered but little inconvenience from the wound, and by the time the trip was completed it was entirely healed.—Los Angeles Times.

Kick Because Commissioners Do Not Keep Road Repaired

WHAT THE "TIMES" SAYS
Was More or Less of "Gold Brick" in Construction--Officials Had Notice

Monongahela people are putting up a kick because the commissioners are not keeping the Dry Run road in repair. This is one of the roads built by the commissioners under the Flinn Road law, and it is claimed, so poorly constructed that many people who took notice regarded the work in the nature of a "gold brick," and were surprised that the commissioners accepted it. Regarding this and the present condition of the road, the Monongahela Times says:

"The Washington county commissioners are now advertising for the re-surfacing of several of the recently constructed roads, among others being a road near McDonald, and another known as the Old Shaft road, near Washington.

"As this is evidently to be the policy of the commissioners with respect to repairs of improved roads, it would seem to be well for our own citizens, and particularly members of the automobile club, to insist on the Dry Run road being added to this list. It will be remembered that with the best intentions to please, the Dry Run road was regarded very much as a 'gold brick' by those who noticed the construction, and the quality of the stones used. Frequent complaints were made to the commissioners during its construction, and these county officials had ample notice that the county was not getting value received.

"It was a matter of surprise and regret that the road was accepted, and criticism of the commissioners' action in so doing was frequently heard and personally communicated. Now the road is practically worn out and, if not re-surfaced, will not be better than a dirt road next winter.

"Instead of the dustless, mudless road fondly hoped for, easily four inches of top dressing have been worn off this summer and next winter will show up Mr. Howley's performance as a contractor, possibly to the satisfaction of our present commissioners, with whom he seems to be a favorite, but certainly not to the gratification of the public who use the road and pay the taxes."

The Dry Run road leading out of Monongahela was only completed a short time ago, either in the fall of 1909 or the spring of 1910, and it is stated that one end was practically worn out before the other end was completed.

Date Chosen For Picnic

Fifteen Sunday Schools Will Hold Outing at Eldora Park on August 3

At a meeting Wednesday evening between W. S. James and J. K. Brumbaugh representing a union of Sunday Schools and Roy Sharpnack, assistant manager of Eldora Park, August 3 was chosen as the date for the union picnic to be held this summer. Fifteen churches will join in holding the picnic comprising the Charleroi district, of the Washington County Sunday School association. Plans for the affair will be gotten under way at once.

SCHOOL WORK IS DELAYED

May be First of Year Before Structure is Completed

NORTH CHARLEROI WORK

With the excavating practically finished, the work of laying the foundation of the new North Charleroi school will begin this week. Owing to the presence of a thick bed of limestone the work of excavating has taken several weeks, it having been started about the first of May. To get the limestone rock removed took considerable dynamiting. This part of the work was started about the first of June and has been continued ever since.

By the difficult excavating a big delay in finishing the school will be the result. When the contract was awarded it was specified that the building was to be completed October 1. Now it will take probably until the first of the year before the new building will be ready for occupancy. William Taggart and Company of Fayette City is the contractor and he will push with all diligence the work on the building.

In the meantime it will be necessary for the school board to rent rooms in town somewhere in which they can hold school until the new building is ready. This will occasion considerable inconvenience. It is necessary for a school district to have seven months school a term, otherwise they lose their appropriation. The school board will endeavor to live up to the law in every respect.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE WHEN VESTA STARTS

River Coal Shipments Getting Better Now That Shutdown Extending Some Weeks Has Been Terminated

STEAMER H. A. LAUGHLIN TO BE PUT INTO USE

With the resumption of the Vesta, was put in use Wednesday. With the mines after a few weeks shut down at California, there has been some improvement in the river coal trade. At present Jones and Laughlin, the owners of the Vesta mine, have three boats running, and the H. A. Laughlin, disabled some time ago at Allenport, will be put into use this week.

All the Vesta shipments are to the Jones and Laughlin mills. The Steamers B. F. Jones and Titan have been operating since the mine reopened at California and the Steamer Vesta then shipments are for local trade.

GRADUATES FROM WEST POINT HERE TO EXAMINE LOCK

Lieuts. Strong and Fowler Inspect Practical Workings at Lock No. 4

COL. ROBERTS A VISITOR

After having spent considerable time in Panama and other places studying government work, two West Point graduates were brought to Lock No. 4 Wednesday by Col. T. P. Roberts, assistant engineer on the Monongahela river to study the practical workings of the lock. They spent a number of hours in and about the lock, being shown about by Col. Roberts and his brother, R. A. Roberts, who is a government employee at Lock No. 4 lock. The West Pointers were Lieutenants F. S. Strong and R. F. Fowler, both graduates with the class of 1910.

It is the custom of the government to send out each year some of the graduates from West Point who have been most proficient in their studies to study lock and dam work, expecting them some time to succeed the present and older men in the various official positions. On a number of occasions West Point men have been brought to the lock here to examine it. Both Lieut. Strong and Lieut. Fowler stood at the head of the class when they graduated. In fact Lieut. Strong secured first honors. Both men recently returned from Panama where they have been for some months studying the work there.

AUTOMOBILE MUCH DAMAGED WHEN IT SKIDS INTO TREE

Skidding on the wet street while running from Spencer's automobile garage toward the Hotel Wellington where the owner awaited the car, the big automobile of J. E. Rylands, proprietor of the Wellington, was somewhat damaged yesterday. Charles Devlin was driving the car, and was on his way to the hotel when the heavy rain overtook him. There were no chains on the wheels and the machine skidded forcibly into a tree between Second and Third streets on McKean avenue. Two wheels were torn off and the car otherwise damaged. Devlin was the only one in the machine at the time and was able to escape being thrown out by holding to the steering wheel. The automobile was taken back to the garage to be repaired.

Rev. G. G. Kerr, of Canonsburg, visited friends in Charleroi Wednesday night. He leaves with his son Gibson Friday for Canada, where he will spend a part of his summer vacation. From Canada he will go to Winona Lake.

ELKS PLAN TO ESTABLISH NEW NATIONAL HOME

Per Capita Tax of 50 Cents to be Levied On Each Member of Order

SITE AT BEDFORD CITY

Terminating the closest campaign in the history of the order, the Grand Lodge of Elks in session at Atlantic City this week elected John Patrick Sullivan of New Orleans Grand Exalted Ruler, but the remarkable race made by Charles Rasbury of Dallas, Texas, for the office made the result long in doubt. Sullivan received 814 of the 1,602 votes cast, Rasbury 549 and Arthur Moreland of New York, editor of the Elks' Antler, polled 233.

Other officers elected include: Grand Esteemed Leading Knight, L. M. Level of Florida; Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight, Frank B. Kingsley of Kansas; Grand Secretary, Fred C. Robinson of Dubuque; Grand Treasurer, Edmond Leech of New York; Grand Tiler, P. H. Shields of West Virginia, and Grand Inner Guard, L. P. Levermore.

A per capita tax of 50 cents will be levied on every member of the Order of Elks to raise the $250,000 needed for the new national Elks' Home at Bedford City, Va., according to action taken by the Grand Lodge.

CHURCH LEAGUE SQUABBLE ENDS IN POLICE COURT

John Walsh, second baseman for the St. Anthony team of the Church league at Monongahela who was arrested Tuesday evening in connection with the fight at the ball grounds was discharged at the hearing before L. C. Isler.

LEAPS FROM HIGH BRIDGE

Well Known Washington Man Commits Self Destruction

SUPPOSED TO BE INSANE

Believed to have been mentally unbalanced by grief over the death of his wife and four children, Brit Hart, 68 years old, a wealthy retired business man of Washington ended his life Wednesday afternoon by jumping into a tank of water in East Maiden street, opposite his residence.

Richard King, a stoker at the power plant of the company, saw the man climbing a ladder to the top of the tank, which is nine feet high, and calling to a pedestrian, followed. Before he reached the tank Hart leaped in and the efforts of King and the other man to rescue him were futile. Hart sinking almost immediately. The body was recovered 10 minutes later.

Hart was born in West Bethlehem township, Washington county. He was a son of John Gibson Hart, former associate judge of Washington county. For years Hart operated grain elevators and was a large real estate holder. In 1884 he was elected to the State Legislature.

Numerous Features Attract Large Crowd to Eldora

BABY CONTEST INTERESTS

Prizes Are Awarded--Athletic Events Decided--Jimmy Valentine Captured

With features in the nature of a baby popularity contest, a hunt for Jimmy Valentine and a number of athletic events, a most successful outing and picnic was held by the congregation of St. Jerome's Catholic church, at Eldora Park Wednesday. There was a good crowd on the grounds and the only marring feature was the rain of the afternoon which dampened the grounds. However, it did not dampen the ardor of those present in having a good time.

Probably one of the most interesting affairs of the entire day was the baby popularity contest. This was conducted by Connellus Buchanan. Numerous votes were cast and each of the eight little tots had plenty of favorites. Three special prizes were given, the first one to the baby of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lee, of North Charleroi. The second special prize was given to the infant of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Claybaugh and the third to the child of Mr. and Mrs. William Urban. Prizes were awarded each of the babies entered.

The judges were M. T. Crowley and George Pepperney.

There were a number of athletic events, including boys' races, men's races, a fat man's race, and girls' races. Paul Nutt of Charleroi won two prizes for young men's races, in the 100 and 150 yard dashes. John Henrion won a prize in the men's race.

During the evening there was an eager search for Jimmy Valentine, and James Dwyer of Charleroi won the prize of $25 for capturing him. Elmer Kiefer personified the wonderful Jimmy, and successfully eluded his anxious pursuers for considerable time.

Supper was served on the grounds and a number went to the park for that feature only. Tickets had been sold in advance and a snug sum was realized. The park amusements were in great demand during the entire day, each child holding a certain number of free tickets donated by the park management. Special cars were provided for the Sunday School children both going to and from the park.

Will Hold Dance.

Prof. Oatman has issued invitations for a Japanese dance to be held at Eldora Park on Tuesday night, July 18. As special feature there will be three moonlight dances and three shadow dances.

LIFE IN THE OPEN.

Notwithstanding the strenuous efforts on the part of National and State boards of health to restrict and eliminate the ravages of the Great White Plague the dread disease still carries off victims by the thousands. One has only to keep tab on the deaths chronicled in the local and nearby newspapers to be convinced that the time of tuberculosis are still too numerous in our own community to make health conditions safe in the midst of such a deadly infectious disease. It is now demonstrated that pure air and life in the open is about the only preventive of this dread disease. Persons who are pre-disposed or threatened, or even in the incipient stages are made to live and sleep in the open air as the only means of effecting a cure. The difficulties encountered and in carrying out this treatment is evidence that more and ample means should be provided for the people of the State to avail themselves of the advantages of life in the open.

One of the suggestions that seems to meet with considerable favor is for the State to acquire still more forest reserves and throw them open for camping during the summer or even winter season. By providing wardens the campers could be afforded police protection, as well as controlled and regulated in their use of the forest privileges. A housed-in family could camp as cheaply on a State forest reserve as to live at home and the benefits of a summer spent in the open would be inestimable. This is a State issue which should come up for consideration, and the health boards of the State will do well to promote it at every possible opportunity.

ROWDY BASEBALL.

The umpire baiting and spirit of hoodlumism that seems to prevail in baseball circles this year is not except in Charleroi, and in some of the local games some disgraceful conduct has been manifested on the part of the spectators over decisions of the umpire. Jeers, catcalls, opprobrious epithets and insulting remarks have been showered upon the umpire who was luckless enough to make a decision that did not happen to please the crowd. This is not only a serious reflection upon the true sportsmanship of Charleroi audiences but it is also a sad commentary on the spirit of Christian brotherhood for which the league was founded to encourage and promote.

Umpires are like all other mortals, liable to make mistakes, but the chances are that nine times out of ten the umpire is right and the spectators wrong who roast the luckless officials for a decision that is displeasing. The Church League umpires in particular have nothing to gain by being unfair, and they only undertake the thankless task in order that others may enjoy the sport. For spectators to deliberately insult a reputable fellow citizen by yelling "Rotter!" "Robber!" and hooting at him because he judges a play as he sees it is not only unjust and ungentlemanly, but is most ungentlemanly, to say the least.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Some alleged musical comedies are so rotten that they are actually humorous.

If there isn't at least one coal deal closed a week in Greene county it feels rather lonesome.

That bad town of Erie which took considerable pride in its wickedness, is beginning to spruce up a bit and goes to church on Sundays; also to Sunday, when he was preaching there.

Some theatres have got to giving fans to women visitors. To insure popularity they might try serving ice cream.

To tell some men they have more money than they ever had is not giving them any compliments worth while.

Ball players can give more expert interviews than half the politicians.

Lots of stuff goes into the waste paper basket of newspaper offices that has been sent by persons seeking free advertising. And then people say newspaper men have nothing to do.

The Washington Post declares that its idea of waste of time is the shipment of a consignment of safety razors to Haiti.

However with Mr. Weymann, Glenn Curtis and others looking after America's interests it appears that we can still be on the map as aviators.

An optimist is a man who usually gets taken in by everybody and has fun out of it. A pessimist is a man who occasionally gets taken in, and grows for months afterwards about it.

Although they decided on Omaha that a horse is preferable to an automobile, people are not noticed trading out autos very rapidly.

Along with the safe and sane method of celebrating the Fourth would it not be wise to make a move for safe and sane millinery?

Both the booster and the knocker think they are doing public service. The only difference is the viewpoint.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Some of the persiflage which baseball players hand to one another is most amusing," said Umpire I. T. Daniel in the Church League. "In the game Tuesday night between the Lutherans and Baptists Coach Joe Mason kept up a line of talk to his players that was most amusing. For instance, Wertz made a two base hit, but got nipped trying to stretch it into a three-bagger."

"Make a hit, but don't think it's a home run every time you connect with the ball," said Joe, the next time Wertz came to bat.

"Later, when Joe's brother Charlie made a long high fly to center which was gobbled by the fielder, Joe growled out:

"What are you trying to do—put the shot?"

"He leaves his players talking like that, and they all obey orders and are putting up the kind of ball that really places the team in the semi-professional class."

On the street car the other day in the suburbs of Pittsburg a couple of young men were engaged in an animated conversation concerning an European trip of one of them. The returned tourist, who was a big husky young fellow, had evidently been sent abroad by some big industrial plant to look over similar concerns in Europe. A bit of his conversation on a side issue proved quite entertaining.

"When I started for New York," said the tourist "I bought a nice new suit case at Doggs & Buhl's—paid fourteen bucks for it. That was all the baggage I took, and I hooked on it one of those leather tags with a space for a printed card with my name and address, so that I could keep tab on it. We landed at Antwerp, and some guy at the hotel didn't do a thing but paste a big red label on my nice new suit case that made me sore, and I put up a holler then and there."

"Look here," I says to the guy, 'if you want advertising space on that suit case it'll cost you money. You get a wet rag or a sponge and rub that label off P. D. Q. You don't use my baggage for a billboard."

"From that time on I had a fight at every place I stopped to keep the guys from pasting advertising stuff on my suit case. Some of 'em I had to threaten to crack their beans to keep them from putting on the decorations, but you bet I kept 'em off. The most of the fellows I met on the route seemed tickled to death to have their grips decorated with advertising stuff but not me. I bought that 'lenny' to use after I got home, and I didn't propose to have it look like an old stamp album."

Tricking the Bobby.

A Dublin eccentric a short time ago entered a purveyor's shop and bought a ham. Having paid for his purchase, he requested that it should be hung outside the shop door, saying that he would call back for it. The customer then paced up and down outside the shop till a policeman came in sight, and just as the man in blue caught his eye he grabbed the ham and bolted. The constable, however, soon located the thief, as he thought, and hauled him back to the shop. Having explained the nature of the alleged crime to the shop assistant, he asked the latter to charge the offender.

"But," said the assistant as he realized the joke, "it's his own ham. He was quite at liberty to take it in any circumstances he chose."—London Answers.

Weatherwise Birds and Fish.

The seagull makes a splendid living barometer. If a covey of seagulls fly seaward early in the morning sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no base hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable. Of all weatherwise fish the dolphin is the most remarkable. During a fierce gale or a storm at sea the mariner knows that the end of it is near if he can see a dolphin or a number of that fish sporting on the high sea waves.

First Flying Ambulance.

A valued servant and friend of the great Napoleon, Dominique Larrey, first established that system of "flying ambulances," which carried the wounded to the rear almost as soon as disabled. The staff numbered about 240 men with 120 horses and twelve light two and four wheeled ambulances to each division. Napoleon reviewed this arm of the service with the greatest interest and once exclaimed to Larrey "Your work is one of the most important conceptions of our age. It will suffice for your reputation." For the Egyptian campaign Larrey secured the services of 800 qualified surgeons in addition to the regular force. At Alexandria General Figueres was severely wounded and on his recovery wished to present Napoleon with a splendid Damascus saber. "Yes," said the emperor, "I accept in order to give it the surgeon in chief by whose exertions your life has been spared." This saber, engraved with the words "Aboukir" and "Larrey," was taken from the great surgeon by the Prussians at Waterloo.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

The Horrors of Thirst.

In the oasis of Mogara, says L. Dow Corington in the Wide World Magazine, we had a first experience of the horrors of thirst. We were seated in front of a Bedouin chief's tent, our two baby camels enjoying their first drink of water since they had left Cairo, when, from across a sand dune, a Bedouin came staggering and tottering toward us. His eyes were bloodshot, his lips twice their natural size, while his tongue, blue and dry, hung out of his mouth. Evidently he had lost himself, had wandered around for days in search of water and had stumbled upon the oasis in the very nick of time. To allow him to drink would have been his death. In spite of his frantic struggles, he was held by four men, while a fifth allowed a few drops of water to trickle down his throat. It was as though he were a redhot boiler which would have to be allowed to cool off before being filled if an accident was to be avoided.

Objected to Publicity.

Old Brother Brown had been approached several times by the colored deacons of his church and asked to pay his church dues. He had promised to "pay up" just as soon as he sold a calf which he owned. Several months later he sold the calf. The next Sunday morning at service the congregation sang the old familiar hymn:

The calf has never been sold
Of life so full and true
Brother Brown, somewhat deaf and conscious of his failure to pay his dues, understood the words to be:

The calf has never been sold
But when it's sold he'll pay

When the hymn was finished the old colored man, very indignant, arose and said:

"Eredren and sistahs, I has sold dat calf and he's got ten dollars! But I didn't ca' about de whole church singin' about it."—National Monthly

A Costly Tuft of Feathers.

On the apex of the crown worn by the Prince of Wales on special occasions is a curious feather, or, rather, tuft of feathers, the top of which is adorned with a gold thread. The value of this feather is estimated at $50,000, and it has the distinction of being the only one of its kind in human possession. Twenty years passed after the first hunter set out to procure the feather before it was attained, and during that period more than a dozen hunters had lost their lives in the quest. The costly tuft is of periwink feathers, and the extraordinary danger incurred in procuring it was due to the fact that the periwink, for some unknown reason, is to be found only in dense jungles in which tigers make their lair.—Chicago Tribune.

Turning the Turtle.

Turtle hunting is not without excitement. The method of capture consists of the simple act of turning the turtle on its back. Once in this position it is quite helpless. Its only defense is to cover its cap with sand thrown up by the powerful front legs or flippers. These are brought into action in an instant, and woe betide the captor who has his eyes and mouth open at the moment, for the sand is hurled with great force. When turned over the captive is dragged up the beach to above high water mark, and this is no easy task, for it weighs about four hundredweight.

MAN AND THE WORLD.

A Very Small Graveyard Would Hold the Whole Human Family.

How little mankind signifies in the scheme of nature is shown by a rather morose calculation of the Italian Professor Zuccarini, who has figured out, among other things, that estimating the world's population as 1,500,000,000 the whole human race at present living could stand comfortably shoulder to shoulder in an area of 500 square miles.

Taking the number of generations in the past 6,000 years as 200, the room taken up by them all on the above plan would only be half the size of Germany, or for the sake of comparison less than the area of the state of Colorado. To bury all the people on earth would need a graveyard little larger than that area.

If the dust left by each body be estimated at one-tenth cubic yard, which is a liberal estimate, it would cover only forty square miles to a depth of about three feet. This certainly seems insignificant compared with the great coral reefs and other immense deposits built up by the shell of tiny infusoria.—New York Sun.

The Archbishop's Shirts.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, says a French paper, is famous for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monseigneur," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work. What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff. Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here, this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Tower, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points considered our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumference of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

Old Cures.

The antiquary took down a little gray book. "Here is a 'family doctor,'" he said, "that was published as far back as 1561. Talk about your quaint prescriptions!" The first prescription, a truly quaint one, ran: "A man be greved with the collicke sickness, let him take a beewes horte and make it to powder and use it. But if it be a woman, let her take a showvelles herte." A 1561 prescription was: "Take earthwormes and cut them small, and braye them with a little wyne so that ye may swallow it drinke the same fasting." For tooth ache: "Seeth as many little frogges, sitting upon trees as thou canst get in water, take the fat bowyngs from them, and when nede is, suget the teth therewith."

W. F. Hennings is Having a Wonderful Sale of Thompson's Barosma, the Mighty Kidney and Liver Specific.

And no wonder, when he offers to refund your money if it doesn't cure any disease of the kidneys, liver or bladder, backache, sideache, nervousness or any weakness of the kidneys. But Thompson's Barosma has made so many almost miraculous cures that W. F. Hennings' is pretty certain not to have any returns.

Here are a few instances. Frank L. Sturges, Sturtevant, Crawford county, Pa., was cured of Bright's disease six years ago and only took six bottles. He has had no bad symptoms since.

"I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Barosma. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 36 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."—M. S. Langworthy, Tryonville, Pa.

After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use crutches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hope had left him, and he had no faith in any remedy took six bottles of Thompson's Barosma, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely true, and the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer in the face of such facts? How can they suffer when W. F. Hennings guarantees to refund the money if a cure is not effected? Thompson's Barosma, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

The Bear He Missed.

Telling in his book of some hunting experiences near the north pole, Captain Sverdrup wrote: "Walrus and seals were harpooned and shot and also the large arctic hare, which seems to have contracted the peculiar habit of frequently running long distances on its hind legs. Hunting was not always easy, the atmosphere playing strange tricks with the eyesight, as witness the following account of the stalking of a bear: 'With the utmost caution, with his gun ready and his eye fixed intently on the bear. Sergei advanced to the spot. Meanwhile the bear sat wagging its head, but keeping a good lookout. It appeared, for when Sergei had come some twenty steps nearer it rose and flew away. It flew as well as any bird, which, after all, was not remarkable, for it was a glaucous gull.'

FRIED POTATOES.

Sold on the Streets From Pushcarts in Parts of France.

The street vending of pommes frites, or French fried potatoes, is peculiar to the northern part of France. Pommes frites take the place of peanuts and popcorn and are sold in much the same fashion. Not only is this trade carried on in some instances as a regularly established business, but workmen wishing to increase their earnings come out on the streets in the evening and sell these fried potatoes from pushcarts. Their profits often exceed their day's wages.

The pushcarts are of the ordinary type, but covered. A coke brazier is inserted through the flooring, over which is placed the large iron caldron holding the fat obtained from beef suet. Raw potatoes, after being pared, are pressed through a special cutting machine, coming out in long, narrow, four sided pieces. These are immediately put into the boiling fat and in several minutes are thoroughly cooked. They are then salted and sold in small paper cornucopias holding 1 or 2 cents' worth.

Pommes frites have the advantage that they supply a satisfying and nutritive meal for a few cents. This is especially appreciated by the mill employees during the noon hour, as they are thus enabled to have something hot with their otherwise cold lunches. Rather than go to the trouble of preparing the dish, to say nothing of filling the house with the odor of boiling fat, many families prefer to purchase the freshly cooked tubers from the nearest vendor. These fried potatoes are not sold merely at mealtimes, but during the day, and are eaten like popcorn.—Consular Reports.

BULL ANTS OF AFRICA.

Elephants, Lions and Even Man Himself Flee From Them in Terror.

In the vast equatorial forests of Africa the most dreaded of animals is the great bull ant. Unlike other ants, it carries nothing away; everything is eaten on the spot. Every kind of beast and reptile—elephants, lions, gorillas, snakes and man himself—flee before this terrible insect.

These ants march through the forests in a long thin column, two inches wide and miles in length. If they come to an open space where there are no trees to shelter them from the sun they burrow underground and form tunnels, through which they march on. It often takes as long as twelve hours for one of these armies to pass.

Any creature overtaken is at once attacked with irresistible fury and instantly devoured. The strongest and the weakest, the most fierce and the most timid of creatures are alike their prey.

Natives overtaken by them seek refuge in the nearest river or pond. Yet even when the ants themselves are drowned their strong pincers refuse to relax their hold upon any flesh they may have attached themselves to, and though their bodies are torn forcibly away, their heads remain.

Certain barbarous tribes, when a man is condemned for witchcraft, fasten him to a tree and leave him to the ants. When they have passed a skeleton alone is left to tell the tale.—Pearson's.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out, in the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat, which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied it down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

A Financier.

Maud—Isn't the man you are engaged to a speculator?
Clara—No, indeed! He's a financier.
"How do you know?"
"He didn't buy the engagement ring until after I had accepted him."—Exchange.

A Taffy-Trying at:
When the French artist Benjamin Constant was traveling in Morocco he was invited by the sultan to present himself at court at Fez. The painter's first thought was in regard to his costume. "Court" in Europe was one thing; in Morocco it was likely to prove something different. There was nothing to do, however, but to wear his ordinary evening clothes. He was ignorant of the fact that the Moors look upon black garments as very vulgar, and it was only after his arrival that he learned his mistake. The courtiers smiled openly; worst of all, they sneered. The painter was a man of hasty temper, and suddenly, nettled by their insolence, he closed his opera hat and sprang it open in the faces of the jeering crowd. They scattered, yelling with surprise and fear. The sultan heard the noise and demanded the cause. After he had seen and examined the wonderful hat he gave this oracular opinion:
"If I had lived a hundred years in your country and adopted all your other customs I could never have brought myself to set on my head so hideous a contrivance as that!"

Painfully Explicit.

The proprietor of a certain hotel in Europe has posted up the following warning to his clients:

"Gentlemen who come in this hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager, and should they want not to say anything, they must order the manager for, and not any one else, and unless they not bring it to the notice of the manager, they will be charged for the least things not, according to hotel rate. And no fuss will be allowed afterward about it, and nothing will be allowed to deduct anything out of it."

After this explicit information there surely could be no excuse for misunderstanding.—Boston Globe.

Surprising the Bullock.

In times of crisis and worry a kind word has been known to have surprisingly good results. The unexpectedness of such a word is perhaps the secret of its force. A late book, "On the Wool Track," backs the moral with an anecdote.

A team was working on the Broken Hill road, and a bullock—the Beezobub of the team—had gone obstinate, and the coach was passing. The whip was swaying, and some apt remarks were just forming on the back of the teamster's tongue when he caught sight of a clerical hat on the front seat and just in time thought better of it. He coughed politely.

"Ahem—Strawberry," he said, "proceed!"

The Indian's Vision.

More or less wonderful accounts have from time to time been given of the powers of vision possessed by savage races. During a British anthropological expedition to the Torres strait the visual faculty of the natives was carefully tested, and from these tests the conclusion was reached that the excellence of vision shown by the savages has a psychological origin—that is to say, it arises from knowing what to look for. When the civilized man acquires familiarity with the environment he can see as far as they can. Thus the power of an Indian to tell the sex of a deer at such a distance that distinguishing features like antlers were invisible was found to rest upon his knowledge of the peculiar gait of the male deer.—Scientific American.

Wondrous Tact.

As an example of graciousness and tact Matthew White tells in Munsey's Magazine of a London clergyman who was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players, the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even today to wear their hair long?"

Bottles and Rags.

"Bottles and rags, bottles and rags!" called out a rag and bone man as he pelted his calling.
"Why do you always put these words together?" asked a passerby.
"Because, madam," replied the man, courteously touching his hat, "wherever you find bottles you find rags!"—London Family Herald.

A Shellfish Thought.

"Funny, isn't it?"
"That what?"
"That when a fellow's affairs have reached the blue point he never declares that the world is his oyster?"—Judge.

Lady Customer (in furniture shop)—What has become of those lovely sideboards you had when I was last here?
Salesman (shrinking)—I shared 'em off, madam.

QUAINT MARRIAGE NOTICE.

William Cullen Bryant Broke the News Gently to His Mother.

The following letter from William Cullen Bryant to his mother, quoted by Professor Chubb in "Stories of Authors," indicates that the author of "Thanatopsis" could enjoy his little joke on occasion:

"Dear Mother—I hasten to send you the melancholy intelligence of what has lately happened to me. Early on the evening of the eleventh day of the present month I was at a neighboring house in this village. Several people of both sexes were assembled in one of the apartments, and three or four others, with myself, were in another. At last came in a little elderly gentleman, pale, thin, with a solemn countenance, pleuritic voice, hooked nose and hollow eyes. It was not long before we were summoned to attend in the apartment where he and the rest of the company were gathered. We went in and took our seats. The little elderly gentleman with the hook nose prayed, and we all stood up. When he had finished most of us sat down. The gentleman with the hooked nose then muttered certain cabalistic expressions, which I was too much frightened to remember, but I recollect that at the conclusion I was given to understand that I was married to a young lady of the name of Frances Fairchild, whom I perceived standing by my side and whom I hope in the course of a few months to have the pleasure of introducing to you as your daughter-in-law, which is a matter of some interest to the poor girl, who has neither father nor mother in the world."

SHIELDED THE LADY.

A Tactful Head Waiter Balked an Offensive Hotel Guest.

To illustrate an incident that occurred in a hotel uptown the other night, where, if you are not known, you have to produce some sort of patent of absolute respectability, construct a rectangle, lettering the imaginary diagonal corners A, B, C and D:

A represents a solitary male person dining. R represents a comely person of the opposite sex seated at another table with a party. C represents a head waiter and D a group of the unemployed waiters. Let the line AB represent an admiring look that travels continuously. RA represents a look of annoyance. CA and CB are comprehending glances directed by the head waiter.

The point C moves toward D, making a triangle. After a whispered direction a figure which may be termed O, because it represents a particularly round waiter, moves from the point D until it reaches a point on the line AB. C moves back to position.

A finds that his glare stops at O, which he cannot see through, and calls O to take an order. Thereupon C motions toward D, when another waiter, traveling on the line DA, effects a junction with A and goes off at a tangent. A cranes his neck, stretching to one side or the other, but it cannot get past O. The result is that A finally sees what is up, finishes his coffee in sheepish disgust and leaves the room.—New York Sun.

Astrology With Risks.

Formerly they had rough and ready modes of testing claims to supernatural powers.

"Dost thou know where thou wilt pass Christmas?" asked Henry VII. of an astrologer. He could not tell.

Whereupon the king's grace, which did love a merry jest, made answer, "I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou wilt spend Christmas in prison."

John Galeazzo, duke of Milan, is said to have made even merrier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early.

"And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the prophet.

"My lord, my star promises me a long life."

"Never trust to your star, man; you are to be hanged today," and the duke took care that his own prediction should be fulfilled.

Killing One Fly.

Every fly begins as an egg deposited in some kind of organic filth. It hatches into a tiny maggot within a few hours, begins to feed and grow, completes its growth and comes out as a perfect fly in possibly ten days. It then requires at least fourteen days to mature its first batch of eggs, and it may live to mature and deposit at least six layings, of from 120 to 150 eggs each. This means that in killing one fly we may be preventing the hatching of nearly a thousand others.—Youth's Companion.

A Healthful Old Age for Women

The turn of life is the most critical period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very distressing symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, extreme nervousness and despondency are symptoms of this condition.

Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

If this period is safely passed through the prospect will be good for a long period of sound health and comparative immunity from disease.

Here is Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon at this period:

Alton Station, Ky.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For months I suffered from female troubles in consequence of my age, and thought I could not live. I wrote you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I thank you so much for the good it has done me."—Mrs. Emma Bailey, R. R. No. 1, Alton Station, Ky.

Kewaskum, Wis.—"Your medicine was a blessing to me in my sickness at Change of Life. I cannot describe what I suffered for five long years from headache, backache, dizziness, no sleep, palpitation of heart and irregularities which are common at that period and sometimes continue for weeks at a time.

"I have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am 54 years old and can do all my work."—Mrs. Carl Dahlke, Kewaskum, Wis.

CHURCH LEAGUE CONTAINS MANY STAR PLAYERS

Two All-Star Teams Picked Which Would Make Minor Leaguers Hustle

There has been some talk of a picked team from the Church league playing picked teams from Church league teams of other towns. Following are given two teams either of which could put up a winning contest against many minor league teams:

Guder catcher	Fleming
McIlvaine pitcher	Miller
C. Mason first base	Wilson
Butz second base	Cratty
Urban third base	Newton
Kuhn short stop	Stech
J. Mason left field	E. Miller
Van Carson middle field	Sharkey
Mathers right field	Wertz

With those lineups there are players left who would fit in probably as good, making the selection of an All-Star team an extremely difficult job. For instance there are H. Mason, Lindsay, Jenkins, Bert Mitchell, Speedy McKean, Bege, Protin, Motts,

Vernon, Johnson and Nutt who are putting up mighty good ball. For pitchers there is a variety, nearly every club having their full share. For instance there are Bragg, Briggs, Kiefer, Fontanesi, Donahue, Beno, Buchanan, Pollock, Dege and Osborne who can ornament the slab properly.

BASEBALL BINGLES

The Lutherans played errorless ball Tuesday night. That's the kind that wins the glad rag.

It's the Methodists and First Presbyterians tonight. Batteries are unannounced as yet but a good warm battle is promised.

It is probable that the deal between the Episcopalians and Catholics in which the former gets Righter and St. Jerome's club gets Quinto, will go through. There was a hitch in proceedings.

Brownsville wants to have a game between picked teams of that town and Charleroi.

Stech the Lutherans shortstop, is probably leading the league shortstops at all points now. He is smashing the ball regularly.

Johnson, the Electric light man, is one who is truly, sincerely and respectfully playing the game to get what fun there is out of it. Haywood is considerably missed on the Baptist team.

Billy Kuhn plays for a double play every chance and if the fellows handling the ball after him are as quick as he, such a play is usually registered.

The Lutherans have three of their hardest games to play this week. Next week they meet the Catholics, the following week the Episcopalians and then the First Presbyterians.

Providing all postponed games are played off before hand the Baptists and the Catholics will finish the league season with their game on Friday, August 4. This will complete the 56 games.

BIG LEAGUE NOTES

Jesse Tannehill, "Doc" Newton and Bill Bailey former American League stars are twirling in the Southern league this season.

Bob Coulson continued his awful slaughter of the ball at Brooklyn Wednesday. He got two hits.

Catcher George Gibson said some unprintable things to Umpire Fray at New York when that majestic adjudicator refused to call Devore out at home plate. Gibby claimed he had him by several feet.

Bobby Byrne kicked himself out of the game at Brooklyn Wednesday and Bill McKechnie went on that bag.

Bert Humphries is waiting his turn to work for Cincinnati.

Pat Flaherty former pitcher for Puttburg is playing the field for Boston regular and tapping the ball to good use.

Brownie Gessler with the Washington Americans is hitting hard.

Tyrus Cobb, Esq., Detroit's premier batter is trying to pull away records for a high batting average, but to beat "Tip" O'Neil's average of .495, made while with St. Louis in 1887, or Hugh Duffy's percentage of .438, with Philadelphia in 1894, he will have to go some.

Greenland's Exclusiveness. Greenland, with its icy mountains, is very exclusive, and so far from inviting visitors, it even makes it inconvenient for tourists to land on the little bit of occasionally green land that surrounds its great heart of perpetual ice. Permission must be had from Denmark. Denmark is, indeed, very careful and exacting in the management of Greenland affairs. The trade there is controlled by the state, and only government vessels are welcomed to Greenland waters. This is to protect Greenlanders from unscrupulous traders. The state also fixes both the price they shall pay for food and the price they shall sell at.

Saves Time For His Wife. They were discussing their husbands, neither of whom was distinguished for domesticity. "My husband amuses me," said the hostess, "by the excuses he has for being detained downtown of evenings. Sometimes I can almost hear his brain working out an excuse as he tiptoes up the stairs." "My husband," said the caller, "is different. He is a very systematic man, you know, and some time ago he wrote out a list of various excuses and numbered them. Now, when he comes in he just calls up the stairs, 'No. 1' or 'No. 20' or whatever the number may be."—Judge.

Von Weber's Last Portrait. A strange memorial of a famous man was among the possessions of George Augustus Sala. He tells of it in "My Life and Adventures." My mother prior to her widowhood had known Von Weber during his visit to London in 1828. He was a frequent visitor to our house in New street, and I have a water color drawing of the illustrious German composer in a gray dressing gown sitting in a large pink and white striped covered fauteuil, his head sunk on his breast and looking desperately ill. Beneath the inscription, "Alas, poor Karl Maria! The great musician died, indeed, in London of consumption on the 5th of June in the year named."

Some Handicaps.

"Sir, I wish to marry your daughter," faltered the young man.
"You do, eh?" exclaimed the fond parent. "Well, I have been rather expecting this, and to be thoroughly orthodox, I shall put a few questions to you. Do you drink?"
"No, sir," abhor liquor."
"You do, eh? Smoke?"
"I never use tobacco in any form."
"Well, I didn't suppose you ate it. Do you frequent the race tracks?"
"I never saw a horse race in my life, sir."
"Um-m-m. Play cards for money?"
"Emphatically no, sir."
"Well, young man, I must say you are heavily handicapped. My daughter is a thorough society girl, and I can't for the life of me see what she is going to do with you. However, it's her funeral, and if she wants to undertake the job—why, God-bless you both!"—Washington Post.

IMPALED BY AN ARROW.

Pinned Through the Neck to a Tree, Yet He Survived.

It was in the summer of 1839 that George Wainwright and Ben Spencer, each in charge of a train of freight wagons, were headed for the Missouri river to bring supplies back to Colorado points. The Indians were very troublesome in those days, and these two outfits always camped together for protection. One night they had arranged the camp, with the wagons forming a circle, and everybody but the guards was to be inside. Wainwright preferred to sleep in a clump of cottonwoods about a quarter of a mile off, and there he fixed himself with his negro servant as a bodyguard. Neither the camp nor Wainwright was disturbed during the night. But early the next morning while Wainwright was sitting on the ground with his back to a tree drinking his tin of coffee an arrow from an unseen foe entered his neck at the right of the jugular vein and was driven with such force as to impale the victim to the tree. The negro, believing his master was killed, ran to Spencer's camp and gave the alarm.

Spencer and some of his men rushed over to Wainwright. Instead of being dead Wainwright was not even seriously injured. Spencer cut the arrow off close to the point of entrance and then gently drew Wainwright's head forward until he was released. The victim suffered but little inconvenience from the wound, and by the time the trip was completed it was entirely healed.—Los Angeles Times.

Tests of Patience.

"Pa, was Job the most patient man in the world?"
"No. We haven't any evidence that he ever trained a dog to walk up a ladder on his hind feet or that he ever succeeded in balancing a feather on his nose."—Chicago Record-Herald.
